Demonstrating the case for a barbecue summer

A POPULAR chef will demonstrate perfect barbecue cooking at a North Yorkshire food store on Saturday [22].

Daniel Cartwright, from Harrogate, is a regular feature at Lewis & Cooper's Northallerton store. The charismatic cook has attracted a popular following for his clear, no-nonsense instructions and infectious can-do attitude.

On Saturday, from 10.30am-4pm, he will be demonstrating a variety of grill-friendly dishes to savour in the garden this summer – even if the sun fails to show. These will range from Chinese-style chicken and char-grilled lamb with summer herb dressing to poached asparagus with butter sauce and Thai chicken with coriander and lime crème fraiche.

The recipes will all be made available on Lewis & Cooper's Facebook site.

Daniel's appearance comes ahead of the gourmet food and wine firm's plans to celebrate National Barbecue Week from Saturday, May 29 to June 5, with a series of special offers and barbecue-related bargains – also detailed on the Facebook site.

This year's BBQ season coincides with the football World Cup, and Lewis & Cooper will be promoting its locally-reared meats, massive range of marinades and relishes and vast array of beers and wines. The upstairs gift department also has a wide range of utensils and gadgets for kitchen and barbecue alike.

General manager Bettina Bell said: "There's always a buzz in the store when Danny's cooking – as well as some fantastic smells, so we look forward to welcoming as many people as possible on the day.
